Meet the Regis College Graduate Ambassadors

Taylor Bronson, ABSN '19

Bradford, Massachusetts native Taylor Bronson received her B.S. in psychology from UMass Amherst but she always knew she wanted to be a nurse, and from early on, she knew what kind of nurse she wanted to be. “When I was 4, I wanted to be an OBGYN,” she recalls. “That changed as I saw other fields of medicine and how many other opportunities there were.” Today, Taylor works at Lahey Hospital and Medical Center as a float pool RN.

“I worked as an EMT for 3 years. While working in that field, I had many interactions with nurses. I learned a lot from those nurses throughout my career as an EMT. I decided nursing was my path at this time. I wanted to be able to work in a job where I would have direct patient interactions and be able to make a small difference in someone’s life.

When Regis North announced an ABSN program in Lawrence, I knew this was the school for me. I had Professor [Susan] Carroccino for Professional Nursing, which was one of my first Regis classes. She used humor and visuals to help us understand the material. There are so many things I learned from her in that one class that I still carry with me to this day. She made a huge impact on my classmates and I and really helped us feel at ease, despite how rigorous the program was.

Right now, my dream job is emergency nursing. However, there is still so much to explore in the field of nursing so I'm trying to keep my options open. Getting my doctorate is definitely on the list...
