

Confidentiality and Privacy

While Regis is committed to maintaining your privacy, certain Regis staff legally must be informed if a Title IX incident has occurred. If you decide to file a criminal report with the police, your name will not be made public—Massachusetts law requires that the identity of an individual reporting a sexual assault be kept confidential in criminal proceedings.

Student Conduct Amnesty

Regis will not pursue student conduct sanctions for your own use of prohibited or illegal drugs or alcohol occurring in the context of a Title IX incident.

WHAT IS SEXUAL MISCONDUCT?

Sexual misconduct is a broad term which includes, but is not limited to: sexual assault, gender discrimination, sexual harassment, domestic violence, dating violence, sexual exploitation, or stalking. Sexual misconduct can occur between people who know each other, who are or are not in a relationship, who have previously had consensual sex, between people who do not know each other, people who work together, and others. Sexual misconduct is committed by people of all genders, and can happen to anyone. If you have experienced sexual assault or an act of misconduct, Regis is here to help you with a variety of on and off campus resources.

What to Do If You Are Assaulted

GET MEDICAL ATTENTION

Regis will transport you to a hospital or health professional. Even if there is no obvious sign of physical injury, internal injuries are possible.

COUNSELING

The crisis intervention and counseling services provided by Regis are available to students regardless of when and where the incident happened.

How to Report Misconduct

You may report incidents of sexual misconduct (sexual assault, gender discrimination, sexual harassment, domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking) to Campus Police, Weston Police, the Office of Student Affairs, the Title IX Coordinator, or any other Regis official. You might also consider EthicsPoint, an anonymous online reporting resource, regiscollege.ethicspoint.com. Reporting an incident to the police does not commit you to further legal action or participation in any criminal proceeding. If desired, Regis personnel will assist you in contacting police to file a report. Regis officials who receive a report of misconduct will inform Campus Police of the incident, but will not include your personal or identifying information without your consent.

Regis Title IX Investigations

Separate from any criminal investigation, Regis will conduct either a formal or informal investigation into all reported instances of sexual misconduct or gender discrimination. During any investigation interviews, you will have the option of choosing a Campus Assault Resources and Education ("CARE") Team Advisor of your choice present for support during Title IX investigation interviews and the Title IX student conduct process.

Accommodations

Regis will accommodate reasonable changes to a reporting party's and respondent's academic and living situations following an alleged Title IX incident, regardless of the reporting party's decision to report the crime to Campus Police or other law enforcement. These accommodations may include, but are not limited to, a new residential housing assignment, a leave of absence or withdrawal from Regis, Campus Police escorts, parking privileges, Regis-issued no-contact orders, and class schedule modifications. Further, Regis will assist in the enforcement of any lawfully issued restraining orders or orders of protection. In order to provide such accommodations or assistance, Regis may need to disclose a reporting party's or respondent's identity to certain Regis staff. Such disclosure will be made on a strict need-to-know basis.

If a student has a disability and feels they will need an accommodation during this process, they should immediately contact the Title IX Coordinator at adam.thrasher@regiscollege.edu and upon receipt of notice of investigation. All requests for accommodations must be made in writing via email in advance. Consultation may be made with the Office of Disability and Accessibility Services regarding any such requests.
